| Due to diagnosis of Hypertensive chronic kidney disease with stage 1 through stage 4 chronic kidney disease, or unspecified chronic kidney disease, the patient is experiencing decreased endurance and mobility, increasing the likelihood of falls. To safely leave their home, the patient needs assistance from another person and an assistive mobility device.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |  |                                                             |                                                                                                                           |                                 |  |

| The patient is an 83-year-old female who is alert and oriented to person, place, time, and situation, with vital signs reported Requiring Homecare:as stable. She was recently hospitalized for acute kidney injury associated with nausea and vomiting and subsequently discharged to subacute rehabilitation prior to returning home. Her past medical history is significant for type 2 <mh class="chrome-extension-FindManyStrings chrome-extension-FindManyStrings-style-18 CE-FMS-diabetes">diabetes</mh> mellitus, chronic kidney disease stage 3, <mh class="chrome-extension-FindManyStrings chrome-extension-FindManyStrings-style-12 CE-FMS-hypertension">hypertension</mh>, <mh class="chrome-extension-FindManyStrings chrome-extension-FindManyStrings-style-16 CE-FMS-hyperlipidemia">hyperlipidemia</mh>, Barrett's esophagus/GERD, asthma, peripheral neuropathy, depression, lumbar scoliosis, and cardiac arrhythmia. The patient resides with her husband in a single-level home; however, the home environment is noted to have significant clutter, including excessive papers around her primary seating area, posing an increased fall risk. At the time of evaluation, the patient demonstrates notable functional decline characterized by decreased bilateral lower extremity strength (MMT 3-/5) and bilateral upper extremity weakness (MMT 3+/5), impaired balance, and reduced endurance, likely exacerbated by chronic neuropathy. She requires minimal assistance for transfers and short-distance ambulation using a rollator, and contact guard assistance for sit-to-stand and toilet transfers with verbal cueing for proper limb placement. In terms of activities of daily living, the patient requires standby assistance for upper body dressing, contact guard assistance for lower body dressing while seated, and is able to bathe in the shower with assistance. Prior to recent hospitalization, the patient and her husband report fluctuating but higher levels of independence with mobility. Skilled nursing services are indicated for ongoing glucose monitoring, medication management, and continued assessment of vital signs and overall medical stability. Skilled physical therapy is medically necessary to address deficits in strength, balance, endurance, and functional mobility, with the goal of improving safety, reducing fall risk, and restoring the patient to her prior level of function. Interventions will include therapeutic exercise, gait and balance training, and transfer training. Additionally, patient and caregiver education should continue to emphasize fall prevention strategies, safe use of assistive devices, and the importance of addressing |  |                                                             |                                                                                                                           |                                 |  |
