Needed Some Help - Patient needed partial assistance from another person to complete any activities.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |  |                       | patient will be responsible for managing treatmentfamily/caregiver will be responsible for managing treatment                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                  |  |
| Homebound status: Due to diagnosis of Type 2 diabetes mellitus with diabetic chronic kidney disease, the patient is experiencing decreased endurance and mobility, increasing the likelihood of falls. To safely leave their home, the patient needs assistance from another person and an assistive mobility device.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |  |                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                  |  |
| Clinical Condition The patient is an 82-year-old male referred to home health services following hospitalization and subsequent subacute Requiring Homecare:rehabilitation for right knee swelling, warmth, and pain. During hospitalization, a deep vein thrombosis workup was completed and found to be negative, and the patient was treated for an acute gout flare. His medical history is significant for a recent left quadriceps tendon rupture status post surgical repair on 03/26/2026, type 2 diabetes mellitus, hypertension, severe obesity, gout, arteriosclerotic heart disease, benign prostatic hyperplasia, hyperlipidemia, chronic kidney disease, anemia, and bilateral lower extremity edema. Prior to his recent decline, the patient was independent with community ambulation without an assistive device, transfers, stair negotiation, activities of daily living (ADLs), instrumental activities of daily living (IADLs), and driving. The patient is alert and oriented to person, place, time, and situation. He resides with his wife in a two-story single-family home with three steps to enter. Due to his current mobility limitations, a first-floor setup has been established with a hospital bed located in the kitchen, as the patient is unable to safely negotiate the stairs to his second-floor bedroom. Because there is no full bathroom on the first floor, he utilizes the powder room toilet and performs hygiene care at the bedside. His wife provides assistance as able; however, her caregiving capacity is limited due to her own medical history, including lymph node removal requiring the use of a compression sleeve. The patient currently requires assistance with ADLs and would benefit from home health aide services for personal care and hygiene support. On assessment, the patient denied pain, shortness of breath, headache, nausea, or vomiting. He remains at high risk for falls, with a recent history of falling at home prior to hospitalization, requiring emergency medical services assistance to help him off the floor. He ambulates with a rolling walker and wears a Bledsoe leg immobilizer on the left lower extremity following quadriceps tendon repair. Physical therapy evaluation revealed significant lower extremity weakness, impaired balance, gait dysfunction, transfer deficits, and difficulty with stair negotiation. Balance assessment using the Tinetti Performance-Oriented Mobility Assessment yielded a score of 7/28, indicating a high risk for falls. The patient demonstrates impaired gait mechanics and requires education and assistance regarding proper stair sequencing and safe mobility techniques. Recommendations were provided to install gliders on the rear legs of the walker to improve maneuverability and safety during ambulation. Skin assessment revealed rough, dry, and cracked skin on both lower extremities. Foot care was provided during the visit, including cleansing and moisturizing, and the patient was encouraged to schedule follow-up with a podiatrist for comprehensive diabetic foot care and ongoing monitoring. The patient utilizes a FreeStyle Libre 2 continuous glucose monitoring sensor on the right upper arm, and his blood glucose level was noted to be 114 mg/dL during the visit. No open wounds, skin breakdown, or pressure injuries were identified. Occupational therapy evaluation demonstrated decreased standing balance, reduced standing tolerance, diminished bilateral upper |  |                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                  |  | extremity strength, and decreased activity tolerance. These deficits have resulted in reduced independence with self-care tasks, functional transfers, and household mobility compared to his prior level of function. Prior to hospitalization, the patient was independent with all basic self-care activities, IADLs, transfers, and ambulation. Currently, his physical limitations significantly impact his ability to safely perform daily activities without assistance. Skilled home health physical therapy is medically necessary to address lower extremity strengthening, balance retraining, gait training, transfer training, stair negotiation, safety awareness, and fall prevention to improve functional mobility and reduce the risk of future falls and hospitalization. Skilled occupational therapy services are also warranted to address deficits in upper extremity strength, standing tolerance, activity tolerance, self-care performance, adaptive techniques, and functional mobility to maximize independence and facilitate a return toward his prior level of function. Education was provided regarding fall prevention, safe use of assistive devices, proper stair negotiation techniques, skin care, diabetic foot care, and safety within the home environment. The plan of care includes continued skilled nursing oversight as indicated, ongoing physical and occupational therapy interventions, caregiver education, and home health aide support to promote safety, improve functional status, and enable the patient to remain safely in the home setting.

GOALS

patient/caregiver recalls

- * lifestyle modifications to manage respiratory condition including
- * diet changes and regular exercise
- * strategies to control shortness of breath
- * home remedies to keep lungs healthy
- * recalls related medication(s) purpose, schedule

patient/caregiver recalls

- * how to maintain a diary to monitor effective and non-effective pain relief including documenting time of pain, rating, precipitating events, medications, treatments, and what works best to relieve pain
- * teach relaxation skills and diversional activities
- * recalls related medication(s) purpose, schedule

patient/caregiver recalls

- * depression-prevention strategies including avoidance of isolation
- * healthy eating
- * sleeping habits
- * identification of activities that bring pleasure
- * preventive care
- * recalls related medication(s) purpose, schedule

patient/caregiver recalls

- * strategies to minimize fatigue and exhaustion including work simplification
- * energy conservation
- * lifestyle changes
- * diet
- * recalls related medication(s) purpose, schedule

patient self-administers medications as prescribed

- * recalls related medication(s) purpose, schedule

patient's transportation needs are met caregiver administers and/or packages medications appropriately
