| Homebound status: Due to diagnosis of Malignant neoplasm of prostate, the patient is experiencing decreased endurance and mobility, increasing the likelihood of falls. To safely leave their home, the patient needs assistance from another person and an assistive mobility device.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |  |                                                          |  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |
| Clinical Condition Requiring Homecare: The patient is a 71-year-old male with a complex medical history significant for hyperlipidemia, human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), hepatitis C, and stage IV prostate adenocarcinoma with metastases to the spine and brain. The patient is currently undergoing chemotherapy for metastatic prostate cancer. Complications related to metastatic disease include right-sided vision loss and right eye exophthalmos secondary to brain involvement. The patient was recently hospitalized due to pancytopenia associated with chemotherapy and required transfusion of packed red blood cells and platelets. Following stabilization, the patient was discharged home and referred for home health services for continued monitoring and supportive care. At the time of assessment, the patient was alert and oriented with vital signs within acceptable limits and no signs of acute distress. The patient denied experiencing pain during the visit. However, he presents with significant generalized weakness and fatigue, likely related to both his underlying malignancy and recent chemotherapy treatments. Due to decreased strength and endurance, the patient is currently non-ambulatory and primarily chair-bound. He requires assistance with transfers and is dependent on caregivers for most activities of daily living, including personal hygiene and general self-care. The patient resides with his spouse in a second-floor apartment, and his wife serves as the primary caregiver, providing daily assistance with mobility and personal care needs. Skin assessment was completed and revealed intact skin without evidence of pressure injuries, breakdown, or other dermatologic concerns at the time of evaluation. Given the patient's limited mobility and increased risk for complications related to prolonged sitting and overall debility, ongoing monitoring and preventive measures were emphasized. Education was provided to both the patient and caregiver regarding medication management, infection prevention strategies due to the patient's immunocompromised status from chemotherapy and underlying conditions, and fall prevention measures. Additional education emphasized the importance of adherence to oncology follow-up appointments and continuation of the prescribed treatment plan. The caregiver demonstrated understanding of the instructions and expressed willingness to assist with implementation of recommended care strategies. The patient qualifies for home health services due to limited mobility, significant fatigue, complex medical conditions, recent hospitalization, and the need for assistance with activities of daily living. Skilled nursing services are medically necessary to provide ongoing assessment, monitoring of hematologic status related to chemotherapy-associated pancytopenia, medication management, patient and caregiver education, and coordination of care with oncology and other healthcare providers. The plan of care will focus on maintaining patient safety, preventing complications, supporting functional status, and assisting the patient and caregiver in managing the patient's complex medical needs within the home environment.Date of Order06/12/2026OrdersPhysician Face-to-Face Date: 04/14/2026Clinical Condition Requiring Home Care per Certifying Physician: sn-disease management pt-eval & treat ot-eval & treat due to Malignant neoplasm of prostateHomebound Status per Certifying Physician: patient requires another person or medical equipment such as crutches, a walker, or a wheelchair to leave home4 - Recertification Notes: Continued skilled OT treatment recommended at this time to address bathing and shower transfer deficits.&nbsp;PhysicianWilson, Marc |  |                                                          |  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |
