The patient's past medical history is significant for pulmonary fibrosis, pulmonary sarcoidosis, cardiac sarcoidosis (sarcoid myocardium), hypertension, coronary artery disease status post placement of two coronary stents, congestive heart failure (CHF), atrial fibrillation (AFib), asthma, hypothyroidism, hyperlipidemia, and obesity. These chronic cardiopulmonary comorbidities place the patient at increased risk for respiratory compromise, reduced endurance, impaired functional mobility, and recurrent hospitalization. During the assessment, the patient was able to ambulate approximately 30 feet on level indoor surfaces without the use of an assistive device under supervision. Functional mobility was limited by decreased endurance related to the patient's chronic respiratory condition. Stair assessment was deferred, as the patient declined to perform stair negotiation due to excessive outdoor heat. Skilled assessment included evaluation of the patient's mobility, endurance, and safety with ambulation. Education was provided regarding energy conservation techniques, pacing of activities, fall prevention strategies, adherence to prescribed medications, recognition and reporting of worsening respiratory symptoms, and the importance of gradually increasing activity tolerance as tolerated. The patient will continue to benefit from skilled home health services to monitor cardiopulmonary status, improve strength |                                 |  |
